*Church Dedicated
in 1919*

Fifteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time: God's law is written in our hearts; we need only to carry it out.

What is the fundamental difference between the Good Samaritan and the two religious leaders who passed the man left half-dead by the robbers? Some might say that the two leaders put the law above the needs of the victim, while the Samaritan responded with mercy and compassion. But treating others with compassion is also a part of the law of God.

Perhaps, more fundamentally, the two religious leaders deliberately kept their eyes and hearts closed to the man in need by walking on the other side of the road.

God reveals himself and his laws in many ways. Moses points out that God has made it relatively easy for people to know and understand his laws because he planted them in our own hearts and minds. God also revealed himself to us through Jesus, the very word of God. He did this so that we can know both the incredible love and forgiveness of God and also how we can please the Father.

We can easily become overwhelmed by the many needs of people in the world. In many cases, God is not asking us to go to the ends of the Earth to respond to those needs. Often, a brother or sister living nearby has special needs that we can meet. Do we have the courage of the Good Samaritan to approach our nearby brother and sister in need, look into his or her face, and respond out of mercy and compassion? If we can do that, then we are truly neighbor to the one in need—and we are fulfilling the law of God.

A Stewardship Moment:

A Stewardship Moment:

Today's Gospel turns our attention to one of Jesus' most familiar stories, the Parable of the Good Samaritan. It is about living how God intended us to live: to acknowledge God's divine love and compassion lavished upon us, and to extend that love and compassion upon others without reservation. We can find a lot of reasons for not stopping to help someone. We can talk ourselves out of being Good Samaritans. Strangers are not our responsibility, or are they? Good stewards understand that God's mercy is a gift that must be shared, and that doing the right thing, acting as Jesus would act toward others, is the only course of action for one who lives according to the demands of the Gospel. How might you be a Good Samaritan this week?
